Question 10 (Short Answer) - 5 points

Briefly state and explain one major underlying cause of World War II.

One major underlying cause of World War II was the harsh terms of the Treaty of Versailles after World War I. The treaty placed heavy blame and severe economic penalties on Germany, which created widespread anger, poverty, and political instability. These conditions made it easier for extremist leaders—like Adolf Hitler—to rise to power by promising to restore Germany's strength and pride. This growing resentment and nationalism helped set the stage for another global conflict.
